Welcome to the 50th anniversary O₂ Silver Clef Awards

It is an absolute pleasure to welcome you to this milestone evening as we celebrate the 50th anniversary of the O₂ Silver Clef Awards.

Reaching 50 years is an extraordinary achievement, and it says so much about the generosity, passion and commitment of the music industry that this event continues to thrive half a century on. What began in 1976 has grown into one of the most special nights in the music calendar - not only because of the remarkable talent we honour, but because of what this evening makes possible beyond the room.

The O₂ Silver Clef Awards have always represented the very best of our industry: creativity, community and a willingness to come together to support something bigger than ourselves. Year after year, artists, teams, partners and supporters have helped build a legacy that has had a genuine and lasting impact through Nordoff and Robbins.

Tonight is also an opportunity to recognise and thank everyone who makes this event happen. To our headline sponsor O₂, to our partners and sponsors, to the committee, and to all those working behind the scenes - thank you for your commitment, energy and belief in this event. Your presence helps ensure that the partnership between the music industry and Nordoff and Robbins remains as impactful and purposeful as ever.

I know you've already done so much by being here today. My ask to you is to please dig deep and pledge as much as you can so we can help this amazing charity reach more people with the power of music.

I hope you enjoy every moment of the evening as we celebrate an incredible legacy, honour this year's outstanding recipients, and look ahead to the future with ambition and pride.

Thank you.

50 Years of the Silver Clef Awards

From a modest lunch in 1976 to one of the music industry's most anticipated events, the Silver Clef Awards have celebrated exceptional artists while raising millions for Nordoff and Robbins' music therapy work across the UK.

Five decades on and the Silver Clef Awards have become a defining moment in the music calendar – bringing together artists, industry leaders and supporters in celebration, generosity and shared purpose.

"We had very humble beginnings and I so admire the wisdom of our Trustees. And my hope is that we'll just survive with our wisdom, Trustees and Governors, looking far into the future."

Nancy Jarratt
Founder of the Silver Clef Committee

The Silver Clef Awards have raised £17m to date for music therapy... and counting.

1976

The first event, a lunch held at Inn on the Park, hosted by Dave Dee, raises £12,000 and launches a new music industry tradition. The name 'Silver Clef' was a moment of inspiration from Dee Dee Wilde.

1978–1988

Fundraising grows rapidly, from £100,000 across all fundraising activities to £200,000 raised by the awards.

1990

Paul McCartney, Genesis, Eric Clapton, Pink Floyd, Elton John, Robert Plant and Jimmy Page take to the stage for a charity concert at Knebworth which helps to fund a new music therapy centre in Kentish Town.

1995–1997

Nordoff and Robbins expands its training work with its Master of Music Therapy programme. Over 300 students have since come through the doors at our bases in London, Manchester, and Newcastle.

2002

David Bowie's surprise appearance to present Dido becomes one of the event's unforgettable moments, helping to double the total raised to £400,000.

O₂ becomes the headline sponsor of the O₂ Silver Clef Awards.

O₂

2005

Thirty years on, the awards raise a record-breaking £700,000.

2013

Edward and Caroline Buckley's powerful story moves Chris Martin to donate £11,000 and gift Edward a keyboard to support his rehabilitation through music. To this day, Chris Martin continues to be a good friend of the family.

2015

Nordoff and Robbins celebrates 40 years of the O₂ Silver Clef Awards.

2019

Ed Sheeran leads a star-studded list of O₂ Silver Clef Award recipients including Sam Smith, Dua Lipa and The Chemical Brothers, as the ceremony raises a record-breaking £1 million.

2020

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the O₂ Silver Clef Awards 2020 is cancelled for the first time in its 45-year history, placing £1.2 million in gross income at significant risk. Despite a two-year hiatus, headline sponsor O₂ remains committed to supporting the awards throughout the pause.

2022

Returning for the first time since the pandemic, the ceremony includes a live auction for George Michael's personal Bechstein piano, with the successful bid providing a £200,000 donation.

2026

The 50th anniversary is held at the iconic Royal Albert Hall to mark a major milestone in the event's history.

SONY MUSIC

A message from our CEO

As we mark 50 years of the O₂ Silver Clef Awards, we celebrate a legacy that has grown from a small industry gathering into the heart of Nordoff and Robbins' fundraising calendar, having raised £17 million to date to support our life-changing work.

We are enormously grateful to everyone who has made tonight possible, from our headline sponsor, O₂, to our partners, category and hospitality sponsors, committee and everyone from across the music industry. It is your unwavering belief and support that has enabled over 15,000 children and adults every year to connect, express and be seen through music, no matter their age or life situation.

Tonight, we're honoured to hear from Edward. After a life-altering car accident, music therapy opened doors for him and his family that they once thought were closed forever. His story is a powerful testament to the thousands of lives music transforms every year.

However, for every story like Edward's, another person is still waiting. The result of an aging population, a burgeoning mental health crisis and a widening gap in social care has created a perfect storm of unmet need across the UK. With over one million people now living with dementia and one in five adults experiencing mental health challenges, our traditional support systems are stretched to a breaking point, often leaving the most vulnerable in a state of social silence.

Music therapy is a vital lifeline because it reaches people when words can't. By using music to spark joy and connection, we can help people feel like themselves again, offering a powerful lifeline that medicine alone simply cannot provide.

Raising the funds we need every year to provide life-changing music therapy is a massive undertaking, especially since we receive no government funding. In a world with rising demand and mounting financial pressures, we need your support now, more than ever, to ensure our vital work reaches those in need.

Please dig deep, bid high, and help us change lives. Together, we can ensure every person feels the same power of music that inspires you every single day.

Warmest wishes,

Dr Maria Neophytou

About Nordoff and Robbins

For 50 years, Nordoff and Robbins has been built on a simple but powerful belief: everyone has music in them.

We believe that every person, no matter their age, ability or life circumstance – has the right to connect, express themselves and be truly seen through music. Too often, people are defined by what they cannot do, or by the labels placed on them. Music therapy reveals something different. It shows what people can do. It meets each person where they are, listening to their rhythm, their movement, their voice and from there, creates connection.

This is the foundation of everything we do. And 50 years on, it matters more than ever.

Across the UK, too many people are living with isolation and unmet need. Waiting lists for mental health support are at a record high. The number of people living with dementia continues to grow. Support for autistic people and those with learning disabilities is stretched beyond capacity. For many, music therapy is not an added extra – it is the only way they can connect, communicate and feel understood.

Today, Nordoff and Robbins is a leader in music therapy: evidence-based, expert-led and grounded in decades of practice. We deliver thousands of sessions each year in schools, hospitals, care homes and community settings. We train the next generation of music therapists, and we are driving research to strengthen and expand the role of music as a recognised health intervention.

In 2025 alone, we delivered 47,982 sessions, reaching over 15,000 people across schools, hospitals, care homes and community settings.

This work is made possible by our team of music therapists, whose skill, dedication and care sit at the heart of every session.

But our ambition goes further.

We are working towards a future where music therapy is fully integrated into health and social care, embedded within the NHS and community services, and accessible to everyone who needs it. Not a privilege for a few, but a vital, recognised part of care for all.

This is where you come in.

From the very first O₂ Silver Clef Awards in 1976 to tonight's 50th anniversary, the music industry and its supporters have been at the heart of our story. You are part of a legacy built over generations and a future still being written.

At a time when charities face increasing pressure, with rising demand, limited public funding and growing financial challenges, your support has never been more important. It allows us not only to continue our work today, but to carry it forward reaching more people, in more places, for years to come.

Because this is about more than one evening. It's about what we build together.

By being here tonight, you are helping ensure that music therapy does not remain the experience of a lucky few but becomes a fundamental part of care for everyone who needs it. You are part of something that began 50 years ago and that must continue for the next 50 years and beyond.

Thank you for standing with us and for helping us change lives through the power of music.

Donate today and be part of our transformative work. Every donation, no matter the size, helps us bring the power of music to more people.

Edward's Story

Edward Buckley was 20 years old and training to be a pilot at Leeds University when his life changed in an instant.

One evening, he was crossing the road when he was hit by a speeding taxi. The accident left Edward with a catastrophic brain injury. He spent three months in intensive care, as doctors warned his family he may not survive. For six months, Edward remained in a non-responsive coma, leaving his parents and sisters in a state of fear and uncertainty.

A breakthrough with music

When Edward finally began to emerge from his coma, he was transferred for rehabilitation to Northwick Park Hospital in London, where Jessica, a Nordoff and Robbins music therapist, began working with him. She introduced gentle sessions with piano chords, rhythm exercises, and singing, carefully designed to stimulate his brain and senses.

"Edward had always loved music," his mother Caroline explains. "While in a coma, his sisters would play his favourite songs through headphones. As he began his recovery, the real transformation began with music therapy, when he started to slowly re-engage, communicate, and reconnect with the world around him."

Under Nordoff and Robbins' guidance and alongside conventional therapies, Edward relearned essential skills through music therapy. He learned to walk again to the beat of a drum and regained his speech through singing. Group sessions allowed him to interact with other patients, using musical instruments as a form of communication and connection.

A new life, a continued passion for music

Today, Edward lives independently, works as a sales assistant, and enjoys travel, adventure and discovering new music. For his family, his recovery is nothing short of a miracle. Music therapy did more than support recovery, it gave Edward the tools to reclaim his life.

"Seeing Edward recover was incredible, but what I've witnessed through Nordoff and Robbins goes far beyond our story," says Caroline.

"Music reaches the parts of the brain that other therapies cannot, offering hope, joy and connection to people of all ages and needs."

A call to support music therapy

Edward and Caroline continue to enjoy their roles as Ambassadors, supporting Nordoff and Robbins, advocating for music therapy to become an invaluable and essential part of rehabilitation. Your donations help provide music therapy to people like Edward, giving them the chance to connect, communicate, and rediscover joy in life.

"Music brought my son back to us," says Caroline. "As a mother, there can be no greater gift. Please help more families experience the life-changing power of music therapy."

You can help people like Edward by putting music therapy within their reach.

As an artist, I've always believed that the most honest music comes from a willingness to explore — to follow an idea wherever it leads. To be recognised for that journey means a great deal. Music has a rare ability to reach people in ways that words alone cannot, and knowing that Nordoff and Robbins channel that same belief into their extraordinary work makes this award all the more special."

O₂ Silver Clef Awards Committee

The O₂ Silver Clef Awards began in 1976 when an enthusiastic team of music industry professionals wanted to use their skills and contacts to help raise funds for Nordoff and Robbins.

Today we have a committee of 19 dedicated music industry experts, who work hard all year round to make sure the awards are the very best they can be. The committee works with Nordoff and Robbins every step of the way and without them the O₂ Silver Clef Awards simply would not exist, so we thank them wholeheartedly for everything they do.

MUSIC IS...

For 50 years, Nordoff and Robbins has witnessed the extraordinary power of music to change lives.

Through music therapy, we see music help people connect, communicate and find joy.

But before music becomes therapy, it is something all of us already understand. The melody that lifts our mood. The record that reminds us of someone we love. The soundtrack to our friendships, our celebrations and our lives.

For our 50th anniversary, we asked people to complete one simple sentence:

Music Is...

Tonight, we invite you to add your voice.

Complete your Music Is... card and share what music means to you.

Because while music means something different to each of us, its ability to bring people together is something we all share.

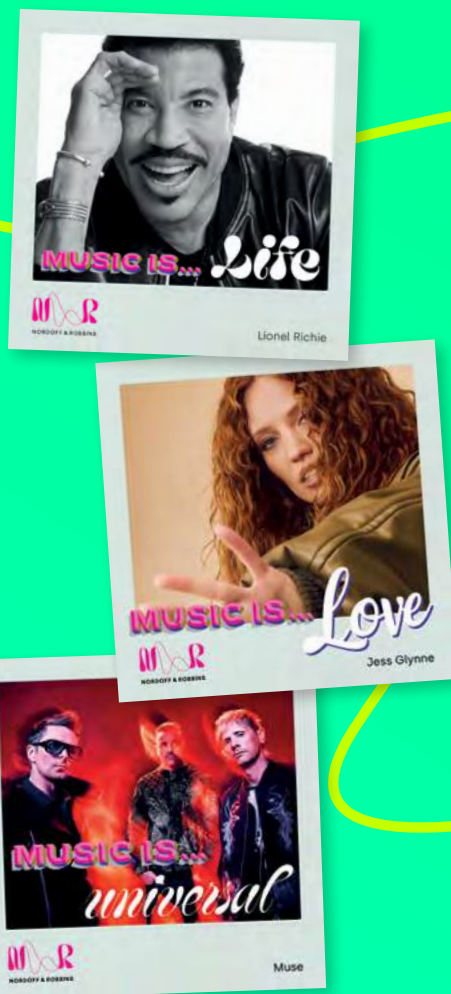

Music Is...

What is it for you?

Scan the QR code or visit nordoff-robbins.org.uk/our-music-is-campaign to find out more, and share what music means to you.

With special thanks to @racheljoylettering for producing the artwork for the Music Is... campaign.

From Bass Lines to Bike Lanes:

1,100 miles later and vital funds raised – a thank you!

Ross Macdonald attended the O₂ Silver Clef Awards in 2024 as he and his band The 1975 were the recipients of the Best Group Award.

After hearing about the power of music therapy and meeting Ruby and Bev, who had shared their story that year, Ross rounded up best friends Brian Macdonald (PVRIS), Matt Hooper, and Darren Purves to embark on the adventure of a lifetime.

Having recently been reunited with Ruby and her mum Bev at our London Centre, they all saw firsthand the impact that music has had on Ruby which spurred them on to take on the two-week challenge covering up to 100 miles a day.

The riders completed the iconic Land's End to John o'Groats (LEJOG) route from the most westerly point of mainland England to the northernmost point of mainland Scotland over two weeks, climbing 23,218m over the course of the ride, which is the equivalent of climbing to the summit of Mount Everest two and a half times.

A big thank you from the Nordoff and Robbins team to Ross, Brian, Matt, and Darren for completing this once in a lifetime challenge and all the supporters who made this possible.

Feeling Inspired?

Individuals, friends or small groups such as schools, clubs, choirs or bands have the chance to enjoy a memorable experience, bringing people together in support of a meaningful cause while fundraising in aid of Nordoff and Robbins.

Email fundraising@nordoff-robbins.org.uk to tell us about your plans.

With special thanks to GigPig for supplying the custom jerseys for the ride.

Leave a legacy of music

Leaving a gift to Nordoff and Robbins in your Will means life-changing music therapy will be accessible for generations to come.

Today, millions of people in the UK face barriers that make it difficult to communicate or connect with the world around them. For many, only music therapy can break through.

And the need for music therapy will continue to grow. That's where music therapists step in.

Without trained music therapists, those living with isolating conditions such as dementia, autism or mental health challenges simply would not benefit from transformative music therapy.

Your gift will help train the next generation of music therapists. Each working with thousands of people throughout their career, meaning the impact of your gift will be felt widely and long into the future.

To enquire about leaving a gift in your Will, or to let us know that you already have, please contact fundraising@nordoff-robbins.org.uk

What your gift could fund:

£2,050 is the cost of musical instruments for a student on our Masters of Music Therapy course to take to their first placement.

£5,000 can provide a flexible bursary for students.

£10,000 can ensure the course costs are covered for one year of the two-year course for one music therapist.

£20,000 will ensure the course costs are covered for the entire two-year course for one music therapist.

£50,000 would allow us to offer a fully-funded place at no cost to one student, as well as supporting living costs for the two-year course, allowing us to work with musicians from a wider range of social economic backgrounds where finances are the barrier to entry.

O₂

O₂ is a brand inspired by a simple belief: like oxygen, connectivity should be essential, life-giving and always present. Since launching in the UK in 2002, O₂ has grown into one of the country's most distinctive and trusted brands, dedicated to breathing new life into customers' worlds by redefining connections and experiences. Through its network, digital services and exclusive access to music, sport and entertainment, O₂ continually creates new ways for people and businesses to experience the world around them.

The brand is owned by Telefónica, one of the world's leading telecommunications companies, whose global scale, technological expertise and long-term investment power the innovation behind O₂'s services.

Today O₂ operates in the UK as part of Virgin Media O₂, the joint venture between Telefónica and Liberty Global. The O₂ brand is also present across Telefónica's European operations, including Germany and Spain, and continues to be used by independent operators in other markets such as Czechia and Slovakia under long-standing brand agreements.

"At O₂, we see how powerful music can be in people's lives – it connects us, inspires us and can truly transform lives. That's why we're so proud to continue our work with Nordoff and Robbins, marking 25 years of partnership with the O₂ Silver Clef Awards. It's always a very special evening – not only recognising outstanding artists and honouring trailblazers such as P!NK, Lily Allen and Sam Fender, who have helped shape music as we know it today, but also raising vital funds for an incredible charity whose work is a true testament to the transformative power of music. We're honoured to stand alongside Nordoff and Robbins and be part of this year's landmark celebrations at the Royal Albert Hall."
